Woodrow M. Strickler
President

Woodrow M. Strickler for more than fifteen years has been at the vital center of affairs at the University of Louisville. A native Pennsylvanian, he received his B.A. from Bucknell University in 1934 and his M.B.A. from the University of Pennsylvania in 1935. Dr. Strickler came to this campus in September, 1938 as an instructor in economics, the field in which he now holds his professorship. From 1946 until 1951 he was the Director of the Adult Education Division, presently the University College. Then he proceeded to be appointed a Vice President of the University and later the Executive Vice President. When President Davidson retired in 1968, Dr. Strickler became the Acting President, and in April he was named the fifteenth President of the University.

At the outset of the 1968-69 college basketball season the University of Louisville Cardinals were doomed. They had been sentenced to a nightmarish four months of play by fans, pollsters, and by the strength that existed in the Missouri Valley Conference. This was a team that had suffered a staggering loss of talent and which supposedly had no bench strength past one or two players.

But in March, when all was over, the team had shown its fans and observers all over the country that they had not accepted this sentence of doom. They proved to the people that they believed only in themselves, and became the co-champions of the conference. Head coach John Dromo, Assistant Coaches T. L. Plain, and Howard Stacey and players Butch Beard, Mike Grosso, Jerry King, Dennis Deeken, Ed Linonis, Marv Selvy, known throughout the season as the "solid six", put together a season and a performance that cannot be termed merely a success story, but a lesson which tells us that no matter what the odds are, they are of no real consequence when pride, courage and a will to succeed take precedence.
